30 COMMISSIONER COMMENTS

Vice Chair Clumper requested the monthly update regarding shelter bed availability. Interim Senior Vice President of Homelessness Innovations Casey Snell said that as of April 30, 2024, the Housing Commission has received 17,834 referrals for shelter for year, of which 19 percent were completed. For the month of April, there were 1,821 referrals, of which 18 percent were completed. The number was slightly lower – down from 19 percent in March – because shelter intakes had to be suspended temporarily for the transition of the shelter at Golden Hall from the first floor to the second floor and due to the prioritization of some beds for people displaced by the January 22, 2024, storms who were in the County of San Diego’s Emergency Temporary Lodging Program. She also noted that for the first time in recent memory, one of the top five reasons why households seeking shelter could not be placed in shelter was because there was not enough shelter for families for the month of April. During the month, there were 110 referrals for family shelter in April, and there are only 51 units available in the City of San Diego that the Housing Commission and the City fund, with only one or two units becoming available each month. The higher number of families is likely related to the increased number of families that were impacted by the flooding in January.

Chair Mitchell spoke about the Housing Commission’s budget for the upcoming fiscal year, noting that budget discussions occurring at the city and state level are significant, serious and not likely to be resolved in the short-term. A two-and-a-half- or three-year outlook is necessary when considering budgets. Rents are rising rapidly. During times of crisis, it helps to be collaborative and creative. He expressed appreciation for the Housing Commission staff and the work they do every day. Addressing the housing and homelessness crisis requires talking about it as a comprehensive plan among many organizations instead of single-entity components, and the Housing Commission needs to take the lead. He said he is excited to have conversations with the City about safe parking lots, the possibility of a 1,000-bed structure, more housing production, and a focus on homelessness prevention. He urged the Housing Commission staff to continue to do what they have been doing.

40 REPORT BY PRESIDENT & CHIEF EXECUTIVE OFFICER

Housing Commission’s Assistance for Flood-Affected Households
The Housing Commission continues to collaborate with the City and the County to assist households affected by the January floods who are in the County’s Emergency Temporary Lodging Program. On April 30, 2024, the County Board of Supervisors extended the program to continue to provide temporary lodging through June 21. City of San Diego staff are primarily responsible for initial housing assessments of City residents in the County program. In recent weeks, Housing Commission staff has been assisting the City of San Diego with the housing assessments for some households impacted by the flooding. In addition to the assessments that City staff is performing, approximately 230 households have been designated for the Housing Commission to complete housing assessments. The housing assessments assist in determining the housing needs of the client, including whether a household is seeking to return to their previous unit or is interested in finding a new affordable unit. When a housing assessment identifies a household as interested in finding a new unit our unit search team engages with them to assist with their housing search. The Housing Commission also has held housing search workshops and encourages landlords to post their available units online at affordablehousing.com.

Additionally, the County Board of Supervisors on April 30 included the allocation of approximately $4.3 million to the Housing Commission to provide further assistance for City residents in the County’s program. Housing Commission staff is meeting with County officials about the details for obtaining and using these funds. The Housing Commission’s Rental Assistance Division is developing a program to apply these funds through a variety of initiatives to assist flood-affected households currently in the County program.
Regular Meeting Minutes of May 10, 2024

Affordable Housing Preservation Ordinance Update
As part of the Housing Commission’s ongoing efforts to support the preservation of deed-restricted affordable housing, the Housing Commission monitors an affordable housing database, which includes 1,427 deed-restricted affordable housing units in service today that are at risk of losing their affordability during the four-year period from January 1, 2024, through December 31, 2027. Deed restrictions on these properties require their rents to remain affordable for households at specified lower income levels. However, those deed restrictions will be expiring. Housing preservation staff further analyzed these properties and determined that of those 1,427 units, 590 are at high risk of potential conversion to market-rate properties in the next four years. Their owners have indicated they are uncertain about what they will do with their properties, or they are considering or already are pursuing market-rate options. There also are no other barriers in place that would prevent these 590 units from being converted to market-rate after their deed restrictions expire. The remaining 882 units are at lower levels of risk for a variety of reasons, such as: other affordability restrictions related to their financing will remain in place for several additional years; they are owned by affordable housing developers or social service organizations that are likely to retain affordability because of their organization’s history of renewals and their mission; or they have HUD rental assistance contracts and a history of renewing affordability. The Housing Commission continues to work as quickly as possible on a proposed deed-restricted affordable housing preservation ordinance to assist with maintaining affordability at properties citywide. Last November, the City Council’s Land Use and Housing Committee approved the framework and directed the Housing Commission to work with the City Attorney’s Office to draft an ordinance. This month, the Housing Commission plans to kick off stakeholder meetings to receive input about the proposed ordinance. And this fall, the Housing Commission will be presenting the proposed ordinance to the Land Use and Housing Committee for consideration, as they directed.

Development Updates of Housing Commission Partnership Developments
In recent weeks, the Housing Commission has participated in grand opening and groundbreaking celebrations for the following partnership developments of affordable housing:
